

Israel National Defense College

Class 48

Background Information

September 2020

Purpose

The INDC is Israel's highest institution for training senior staff in the IDF, the security establishment, as well as senior officials in government ministries and agencies, for senior positions. This is based on a government decision of May 23rd, 1976.

The Israel National Defense College is designed to be a national institute for comprehensive and in-depth study of all national security elements and the interrelationships between them. The INDC's curriculum is integrated with an academic curriculum which is conducted both at the University of Haifa and at the Military Colleges base, Camp Dayan.

Goals of the College Year

1. Study and research of Israel's national security concepts and elements.
2. Analysis of the interrelationships between the various elements of national security.
3. Development of strategic thinking tools, which are appropriate for senior executives facing national security challenges.

About the Curriculum

The academic year opened on September 2nd, 2020, and is scheduled to end on 15 July, 2020. It includes a Master's degree in Political Science from the University of Haifa. During the school year, the participants take part in many courses, exercises and learning tours (in Israel and abroad) that deal with all national security aspects of the State of Israel and beyond, and encompass the following four main areas: national defense, statesmanship, economy and society. Beyond these four main learning areas, the INDC provides participants with tools for thinking and planning at the strategic level.

The INDC's academic year is conducted in four study seasons: The first season is the International Season, in which the participants are exposed to fundamental concepts of national security from a geo-strategic perspective. The season ends with a research seminar and study tours to four European countries (Lithuania, Serbia, Greece and Cyprus), each of the four teams in a respective country, then followed by a visit to NATO and the European Union.

The second season is the Israeli Season, in which the participants delve deep into the national security elements of the State of Israel. This season includes the conduct of strategic investigations, and ends with a political-security simulation dealing with the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

The third season is the Specialization Season, in which they participate in a course titled: The Digital World for Decision Makers. Additionally, in this season every participant chooses two seminars. The Specialization Season ends with a research seminar and a study tour to several countries and the East and Russia.

The fourth season is the Integrative Season, in which every participant is required to work on a final project related to national security (in interdisciplinary groups of up to 3 participants). To conclude the season and the school year, there is a two-week learning tour to the US, which provides the participants with a better understanding of the American System, the characteristics of a global power, and the special connections between the US and the State of Israel.

Throughout the year, the participants hear directly from decision-makers in the State of Israel and around the world. They meet Israeli leaders such as mayors, ministers, members of Knesset, heads of security agencies, CEO's of government offices, ambassadors, cultural leaders and more.

Lectures at the INDC

1. Chatham House Rules apply to all participants and lecturers.
2. We request that you leave at least one third of the lecture time for questions and answers.
3. The INDC advances a culture of honest and open discussions, even when it comes to difficult topics. We thank our guests for their patience to hear other opinions and ideas.
4. There are six international students (foreign army officers) in the INDC. All lectures are translated simultaneously to English.
5. In light of the class heterogeneity and diverse backgrounds of the participants, we appreciate the minimal use of acronyms during the lecture.
