

Eisenhower School
National Defense University
Cyber Domain/Advanced Computing Industry Study
Academic Year 2019-2020

Col Andrew H. Nichols, USAF, is Assistant Professor, National Security and Industrial Base, Eisenhower School for National Security and Resource Strategy, and Faculty Lead for the Cyber Domain/Advanced Computing Industry Study. He joined the Eisenhower School faculty in July 2018 following assignments with Air Force Space Command and U.S. Cyber Command. He earlier served in U.S. Strategic Command, the Dept. of the Treasury (as a contractor), U.S. European Command, the Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE), the 4th Fighter Wing at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, North Carolina, and in two Air Force system program offices (Propulsion and C-17). His educational background includes a B.S. in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Utah, an M.B.A. in Finance from Wright State University, a Master in Public Administration from the Harvard Kennedy School, and an M.S. in Business Analytics from the George Washington University.